Welcome to Adrian

A new member of the Time Banking UK team started this month, and he is based in the North West of England in Manchester.

He's taken over the role as Co-ordinator - Older People's Project - England, and is looking to visit a few time banks around the country, especially if they are involved with working with older people - so if you're one of them, please do get in touch with him.

Time 2 Trade tackles credit crunch

T2T in West Bromwich was featured on Midlands Today this month as an example of ways people are dealing with credit crunch.

The short film has been put together very well, showing that it's great way of promoting your time bank, and raising it's profile

Time banking and prisons

On 15th August, time banks from all over the country got together for an event held at Millbank Tower in London to explore new ways prisons, time banks and probation teams can form partnerships and contribute to the support networks for prisoners and their families.

Looking in particular at the success of the project in Gloucester, many of the prisons who were also represented at the event have now agreed to start looking at ways to work together with their local time bank, or even start their own within the prison itself.
